

Informed parents help students succeed

Parents want to be informed about every part of their child's academic experience. To help students be successful, parents need critical data like assignments, grades, and attendance. Providing that valuable data from your SIS and gradebooks, and adding it to your communication channels, will help you strengthen student support and parent engagement.

Provide your parents with critical data

Student information

- Add teacher and class names to attendance notifications
- Display class list and teachers for every child

Grade book

- Pull grades and assignments right from your teacher grade books
- Notify parents of new items, grade drops, and assignments

Cafeteria systems

- Alert parents of low or expired cafeteria balances
- Let parents and students view the menu and add the information to their calendar

Human resources

- Create teacher and staff groups to include in important messages and notifications

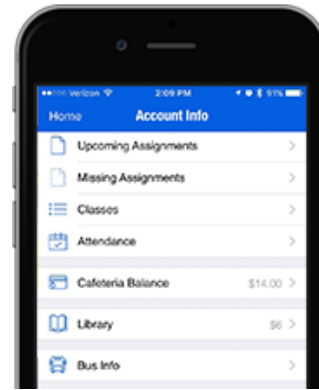

Unlock the power of your data using custom fields, query-generated group creation tools, and more!

Dashboard:

The Dashboard is a personalized experience for parents that provides a single place to view district, school and class updates. From one convenient location, parents see their child's progress and be a part of their daily activities without visiting hundreds of different web pages.

Student Information Section:

The Student Information Section of the Mobile Communications App puts student data in the hands of parents and students. Parents can access the event and information they want, along with the academic updates and notifications they need.

Targeted Mass Notifications:

Push student data to your parents. Mass Notifications become even more powerful when student data incorporates personalized messages and alerts. Triggered attendance alerts, grade drop notifications, low lunch balance messages and more allow you to keep parents in-the-know proactively.
